

I have subscribed and listened to XM Satellite Radio for over two years. I have listened to two various channels, including the traffic and weather channels. I think the idea of prohibiting XM from providing this information is absurd and unfounded. Competition leads to better products and services. The NAB should be more concerned about putting out a better product than keeping someone else from introducing one!